Read the following text on NAIDOC Week and answer the following questions.

What Is NAIDOC Week?

NAIDOC Week celebrates and honours Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and cultures. The week occurs annually in July, usually including the second Friday. This day was historically celebrated as 'National Aboriginal Day'. NAIDOC Week provides an opportunity for all Australian people to recognise the history and achievements of our First Nations peoples.

The acronym 'NAIDOC' originally stood for the National Aborigines and Islanders Day Observance Committee. In the past, this committee was responsible for organising events during NAIDOC Week. These days, NAIDOC has become the name of the week itself. The new name for the organising committee is the National NAIDOC Committee (NNC). The NNC makes important decisions about NAIDOC Week, such as choosing the annual theme, the focus city and the various competition and award winners.

Every year during NAIDOC Week, an awards ceremony is held in one of Australia's cities. The National NAIDOC Awards are an opportunity to celebrate the significant contributions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples across many fields of endeavour. The National NAIDOC Poster Competition is also held in the lead up to NAIDOC Week.

Did You Know...?

- Twenty-two million jars of Vegemite are sold every year.
- It has a thick and sticky consistency and is almost black in colour.
- Being one of the richest known sources of Vitamin B, it is very salty.

Australians are used to the flavour of Vegemite, as they grow up eating it. When travelling overseas, some people even take it with them as a small reminder of home. However, adults who try it for the first time say that it is something that takes a little getting used to!

The Story of Vegemite

The story of Vegemite began with the Fred Walker Company in 1922. They wanted to create a spread with plenty of Vitamin B. The company hired a chemist called Dr Cyril P. Callister. It was he who developed the spread.

They wanted lots of people to buy their new product, so the company let the public name it themselves. They launched a national competition. In 1923, the product was named Vegemite. Soon, jars of Vegemite were being sold all over the country.

At the same time, there was a similar product from England known as 'Marmite'. Shoppers didn't want to try something different and Vegemite sales dropped. The company renamed it to 'Parwill' with a clever catchphrase to go with it: "If Marmite... then Parwill!" However, sales did not improve.

It took 14 years and a change back to its original name before the people of Australia embraced Vegemite. Doctors began recommending it and during the Second World War, the armed forces sent it to the soldiers. It became so popular that the company couldn't meet the demands of the public.

The company also created the song 'Happy Little Vegemites', which was released on the radio in 1954. It went onto the television in 1956. Even today, the song is easily recognised, with Vegemite putting 'a rose in every cheek'.

Homophones

Homophones are words that are pronounced the same, but have different meanings. The words may be spelt the same, such as rose (flower) and rose (past tense of "rise"); or differently, such as where, wear and we're, or there, their, and they're. Homophones that are spelt the same are known as both homographs and homonyms. Homophones that are spelt differently are also called heterographs. Some more examples of homophones are:
